As a Financial Advisor at Seventy2 Capital, Nick Shealy specializes in working with corporate clients to create customized retirement plan solutions while providing continuing training and support for their employees.

Nick first came to Seventy2 Capital in 2017 as an intern while attending the Robert H. Smith School of Business at the University of Maryland, where he majored in Finance. After graduating with distinction, Nick joined full-time as a Wealth Associate where he supported various client service, research, and analytical activities in preparation for becoming an Advisor. Nick also works closely with the practice's Investment Committee on asset allocation and asset selection process improvements. He has a particular focus on financial literacy and education for Millennials. Having completed wealth management internships with Seventy2 Capital, Morgan Stanley, and HSBC, he brings a strong background in the areas of financial analysis and business development.

Nick is a native of Maryland and currently resides in Washington, DC. Outside of the office, he enjoys golf, cooking, and marksmanship.
