Linda Whittington leads the Seventy2 Capital office in Tysons Corner, Virginia, as a Partner. She is a CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ professional and Financial Advisor. With over 15 years of professional experience in the industry, she has a track record of providing clients with the highest level of knowledge, trust, and service. Linda believes that by forging close bonds with clients, she's able to create personalized investment programs and open lines of communication that allow for a deeper understanding of client goals. Linda develops comprehensive wealth management strategies, including investment recommendations, retirement planning, and liability management for high-net-worth individuals, families, and executives. Linda is also a key leader in the extension of Seventy2 Capital's geographic footprint in Virginia.

Linda's previous experience includes roles with Morgan Stanley and, most recently, Wells Fargo Advisors. She earned a dual degree from Radford University in Business and Education and has gained further specializations such as the Executive Certified Financial Planning Certificate from Georgetown University and the Investment Management Theory and Practice Certification from the Yale School of Management. Linda originally started her career as an educator and uses these skills to develop strong client relationships by fostering trust through continued learning.

Linda resides in Ashburn, Virginia with her two sons and two dogs. In her leisure time, she spends time with family and friends and enjoys golfing and skiing.
