Matthew Hanley has a holistic approach to wealth management as a Vice President at Seventy2 Capital Wealth Management. He works with families on everything from long-term retirement planning, education planning, and charitable gifting to budgeting for vacations. His clients span from college students to retirees, giving him vast experience in investment planning at all stages of life.

Prior to joining Seventy2 Capital, Matthew spent over ten years at Merrill Lynch, first as an intern and then as a Financial Advisor. Throughout his career, he has always aimed to be a resource for any financial questions his clients may have.

Matthew received his bachelor's degree in business administration with a concentration in finance from Towson University, where he was captain of the men's hockey team. Outside of the office, he enjoys spending time with his wife, their two sons, and their dog, either outdoors or working on their hundred-year-old home. He continues to play hockey weekly and is a coach for the Loyola Blakefield varsity team.
